CLASS POEM

June has crept upon us

With its sun so warm and

Its breezes so cool

It has climaxed our four happy years

At Bellingham High School.

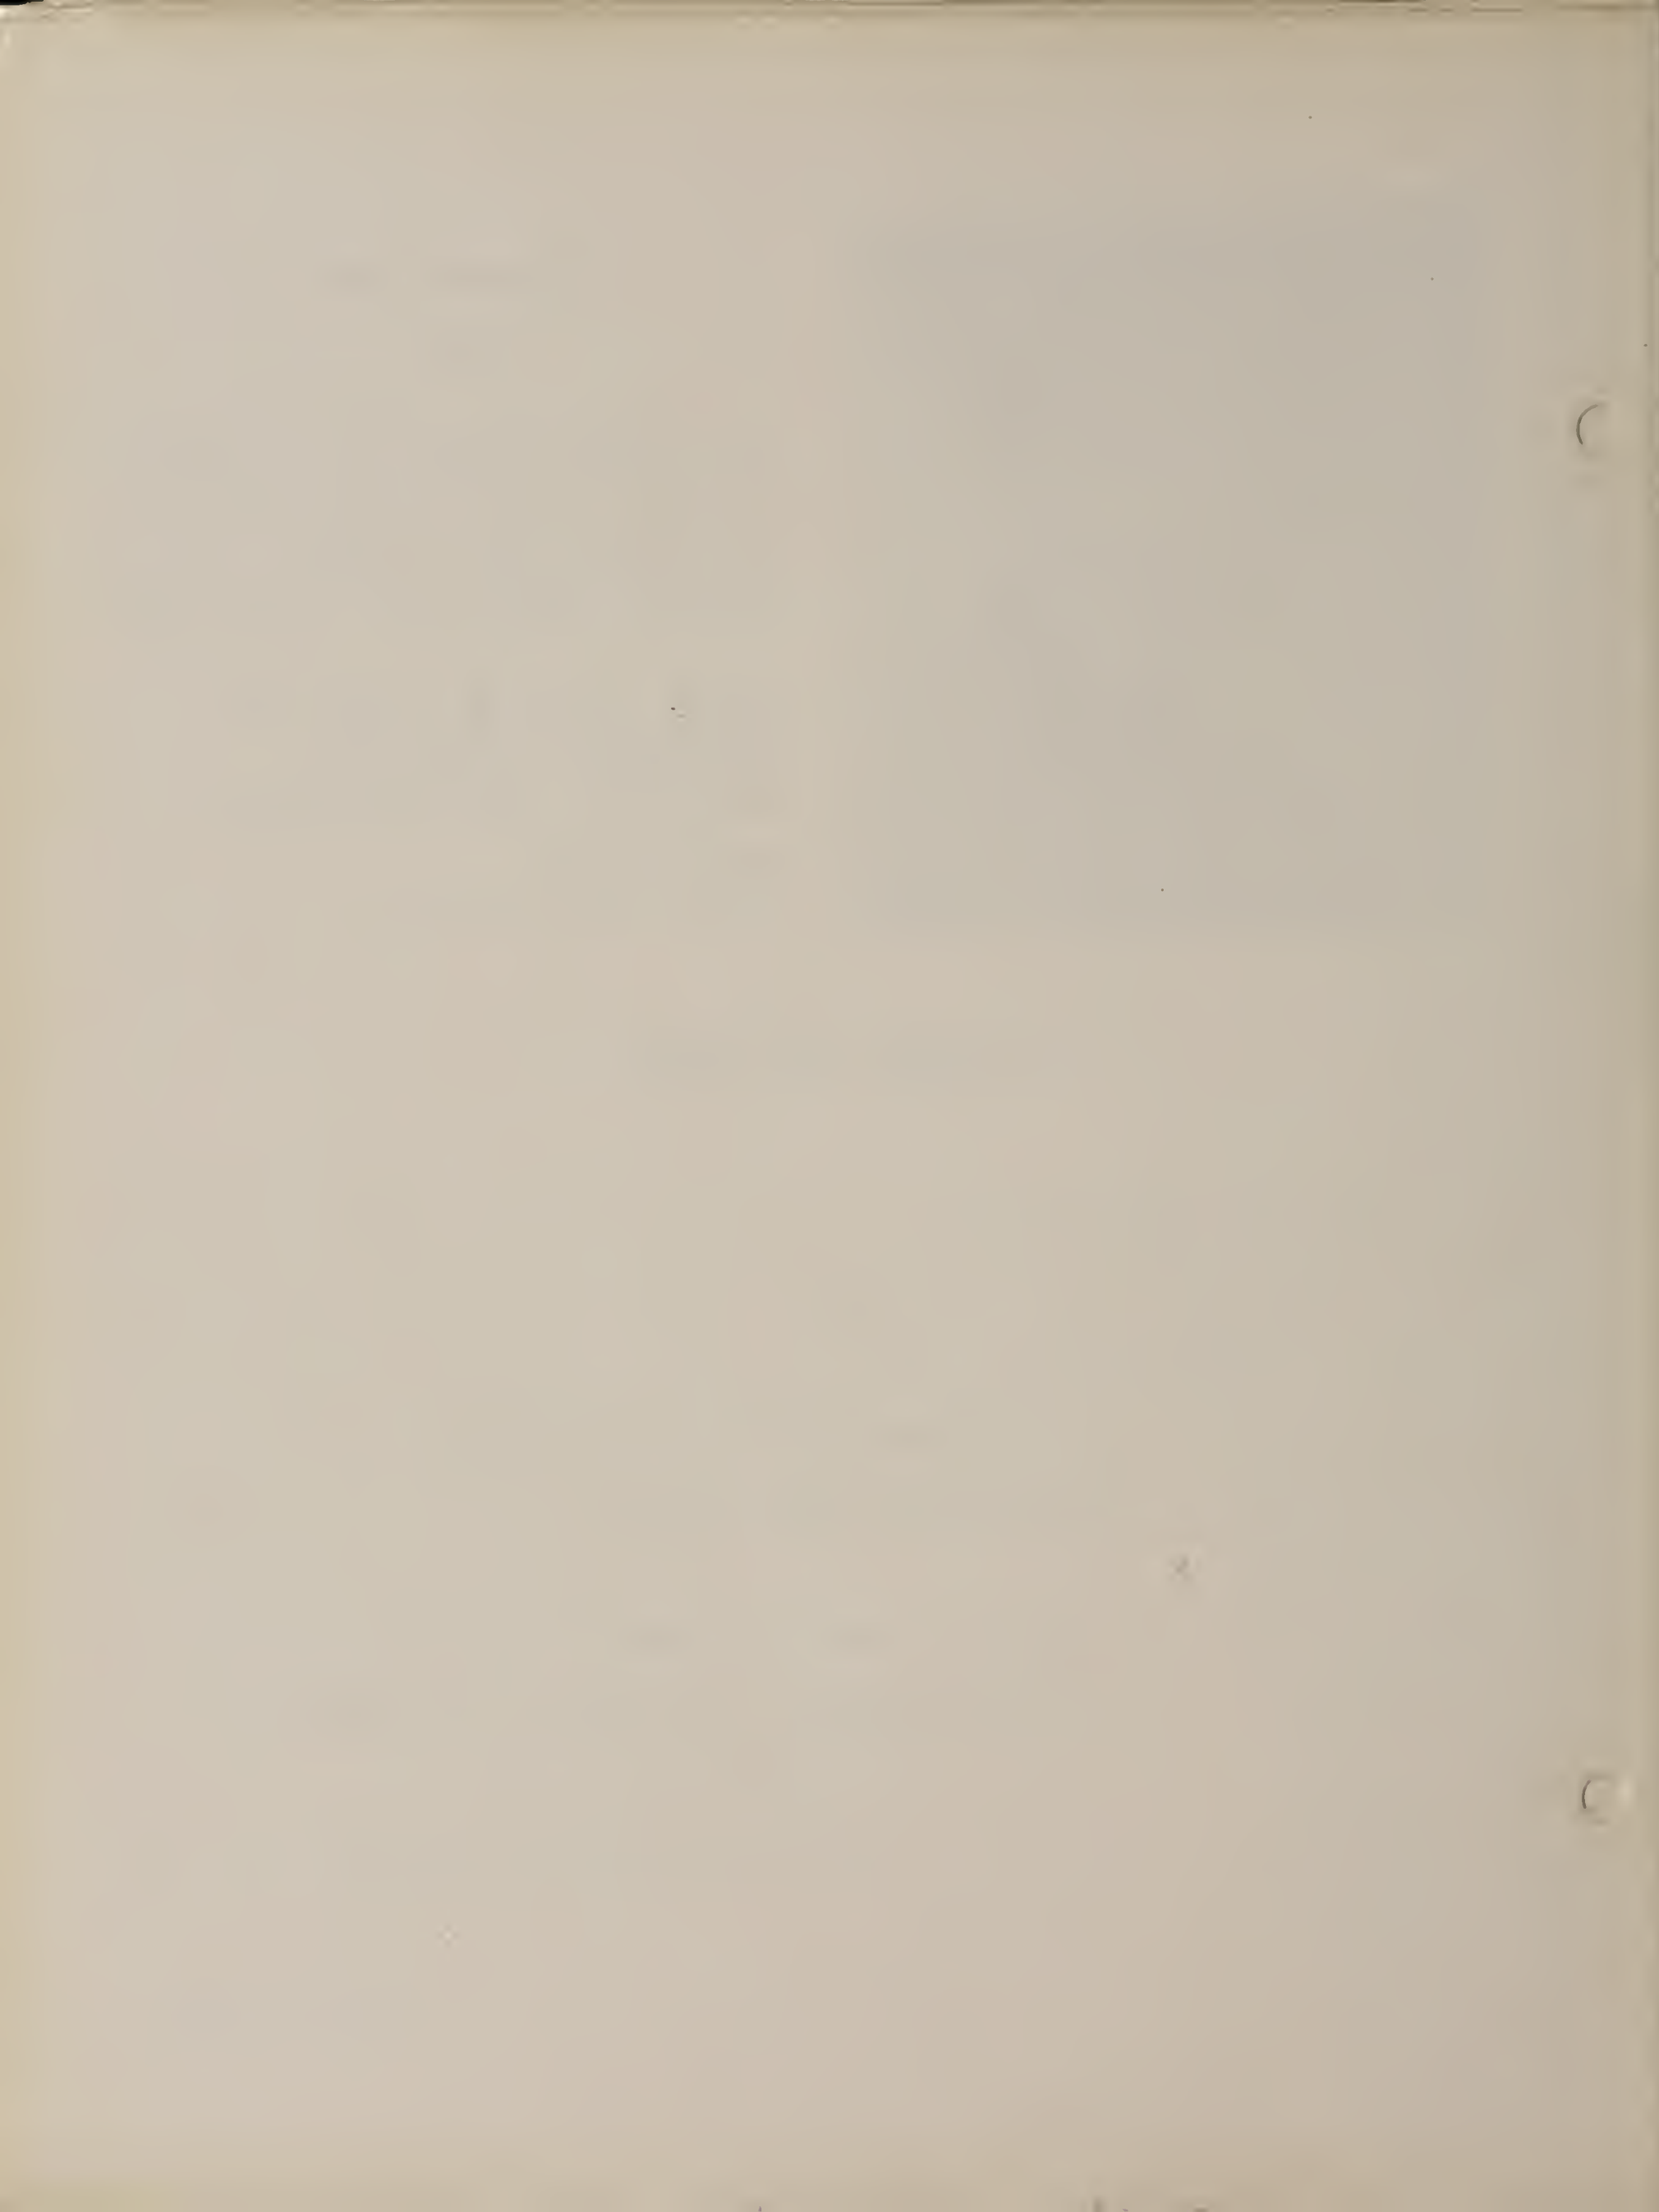

Now we seek new fields of endeavor

To remember you forever and forever

It's time to bid adieu

With fond memories of you.

ALBERT FORTE

Class Prophecy

What a thrilling experience! Mixing business with pleasure I was preparing for my first trip to Mars to visit some of my former classmates whom I had not seen since graduation in 1952. How different the world was now and some of my classmates had much to do with making it different.

Barbara Chliszczyk had started it all by fathoming a way to stay young longer. We could now live to the ripe old age of 175 years.

Space cadets, robots, and even trips to Mars were realized. Make believe had come true! Why?

I arrived at the airport and immediately set out to seek what other people thought about this change in the world and whom should I see roaming around but those two girls who were noted for always loitering in the hallway at school during study periods. You all remember Katy Betsch and Chris Glowka. Katy was now a Physical Ed Instructor at Blackstone High, of all places, and Chris who has a flair for designing, was an interior decorator. I said hello to them and they informed me that they had just returned from Mars and had seen Moe Ledoux. Moe was thinking of opening a drug store and was still there attempting to procure a permit.

As I strolled liesurly on my merry way I was startled to hear a sharp commanding voice giving orders to a group of mechanics who looked "scared to death". They just couldn't seem to finish their work quickly enough to satisfy "the big boss". You'll never guess who it was. It was that Normand Blain who had always been so quiet and who was now chief mechanic at the airport.

I then decided to board the rocket and was ready to ascend the steps when a figure darted in front of me, knocking me down. Suddenly she stopped and retraced her steps and stopped directly in front of me. I was just about to tell this ill-mannered girl what I thought of her when she said "I'm Claire Fleurette. Remember me?" No one would ever have believed that this was Claire Fleurette. Figuratively speaking, she had changed a great deal. She was Henry Patrick's private secretary and was rushing to deliver some papers for him to Bruce Carroll. Henry was president of his own firm and had just taken Bruce on as a Junior partner.

Well I finally did get into the rocket and Pauline Allain was there to take me to my seat and instructed me on how to prevent getting a severe jolt when we penetrated the atmosphere. She said she enjoyed her work as hostess and had been trained in a school established by Billy Cowen. Billy was a shrewd businessman and was planning to open such a school on Mars. Pauline inquired as to whether or not I had seen any of the other kids with whom we had graduated and I told her that Connie Casavant was married but was combining a singing career with marriage and was very successful.

Pauline Landry was also married and had three children but was still the jolly Pauline we had known in High School days.

Katy had passed along the information that Andy Gregoire was now coaching basketball at Bellingham High and his teams had won 3 state championships in a row.

The pilot entered the rocket and we knew that at long last we were ready to take off on the most adventurous trip we had ever taken. I fastened my safety belt and settled back wondering what this excursion into space would be like. My thoughts were interrupted by a man's voice asking if he could share my seat. I looked up and there standing beside me was Carl Adams. He was going to study plant life on Mars for a government research laboratory. He certainly had come a long way since starting his career as a farmer.

As we zoomed through space we chatted about our wonderful days at B.H.S. Neither of us had believed these amazing things could happen to the world but were very pleased that they had.

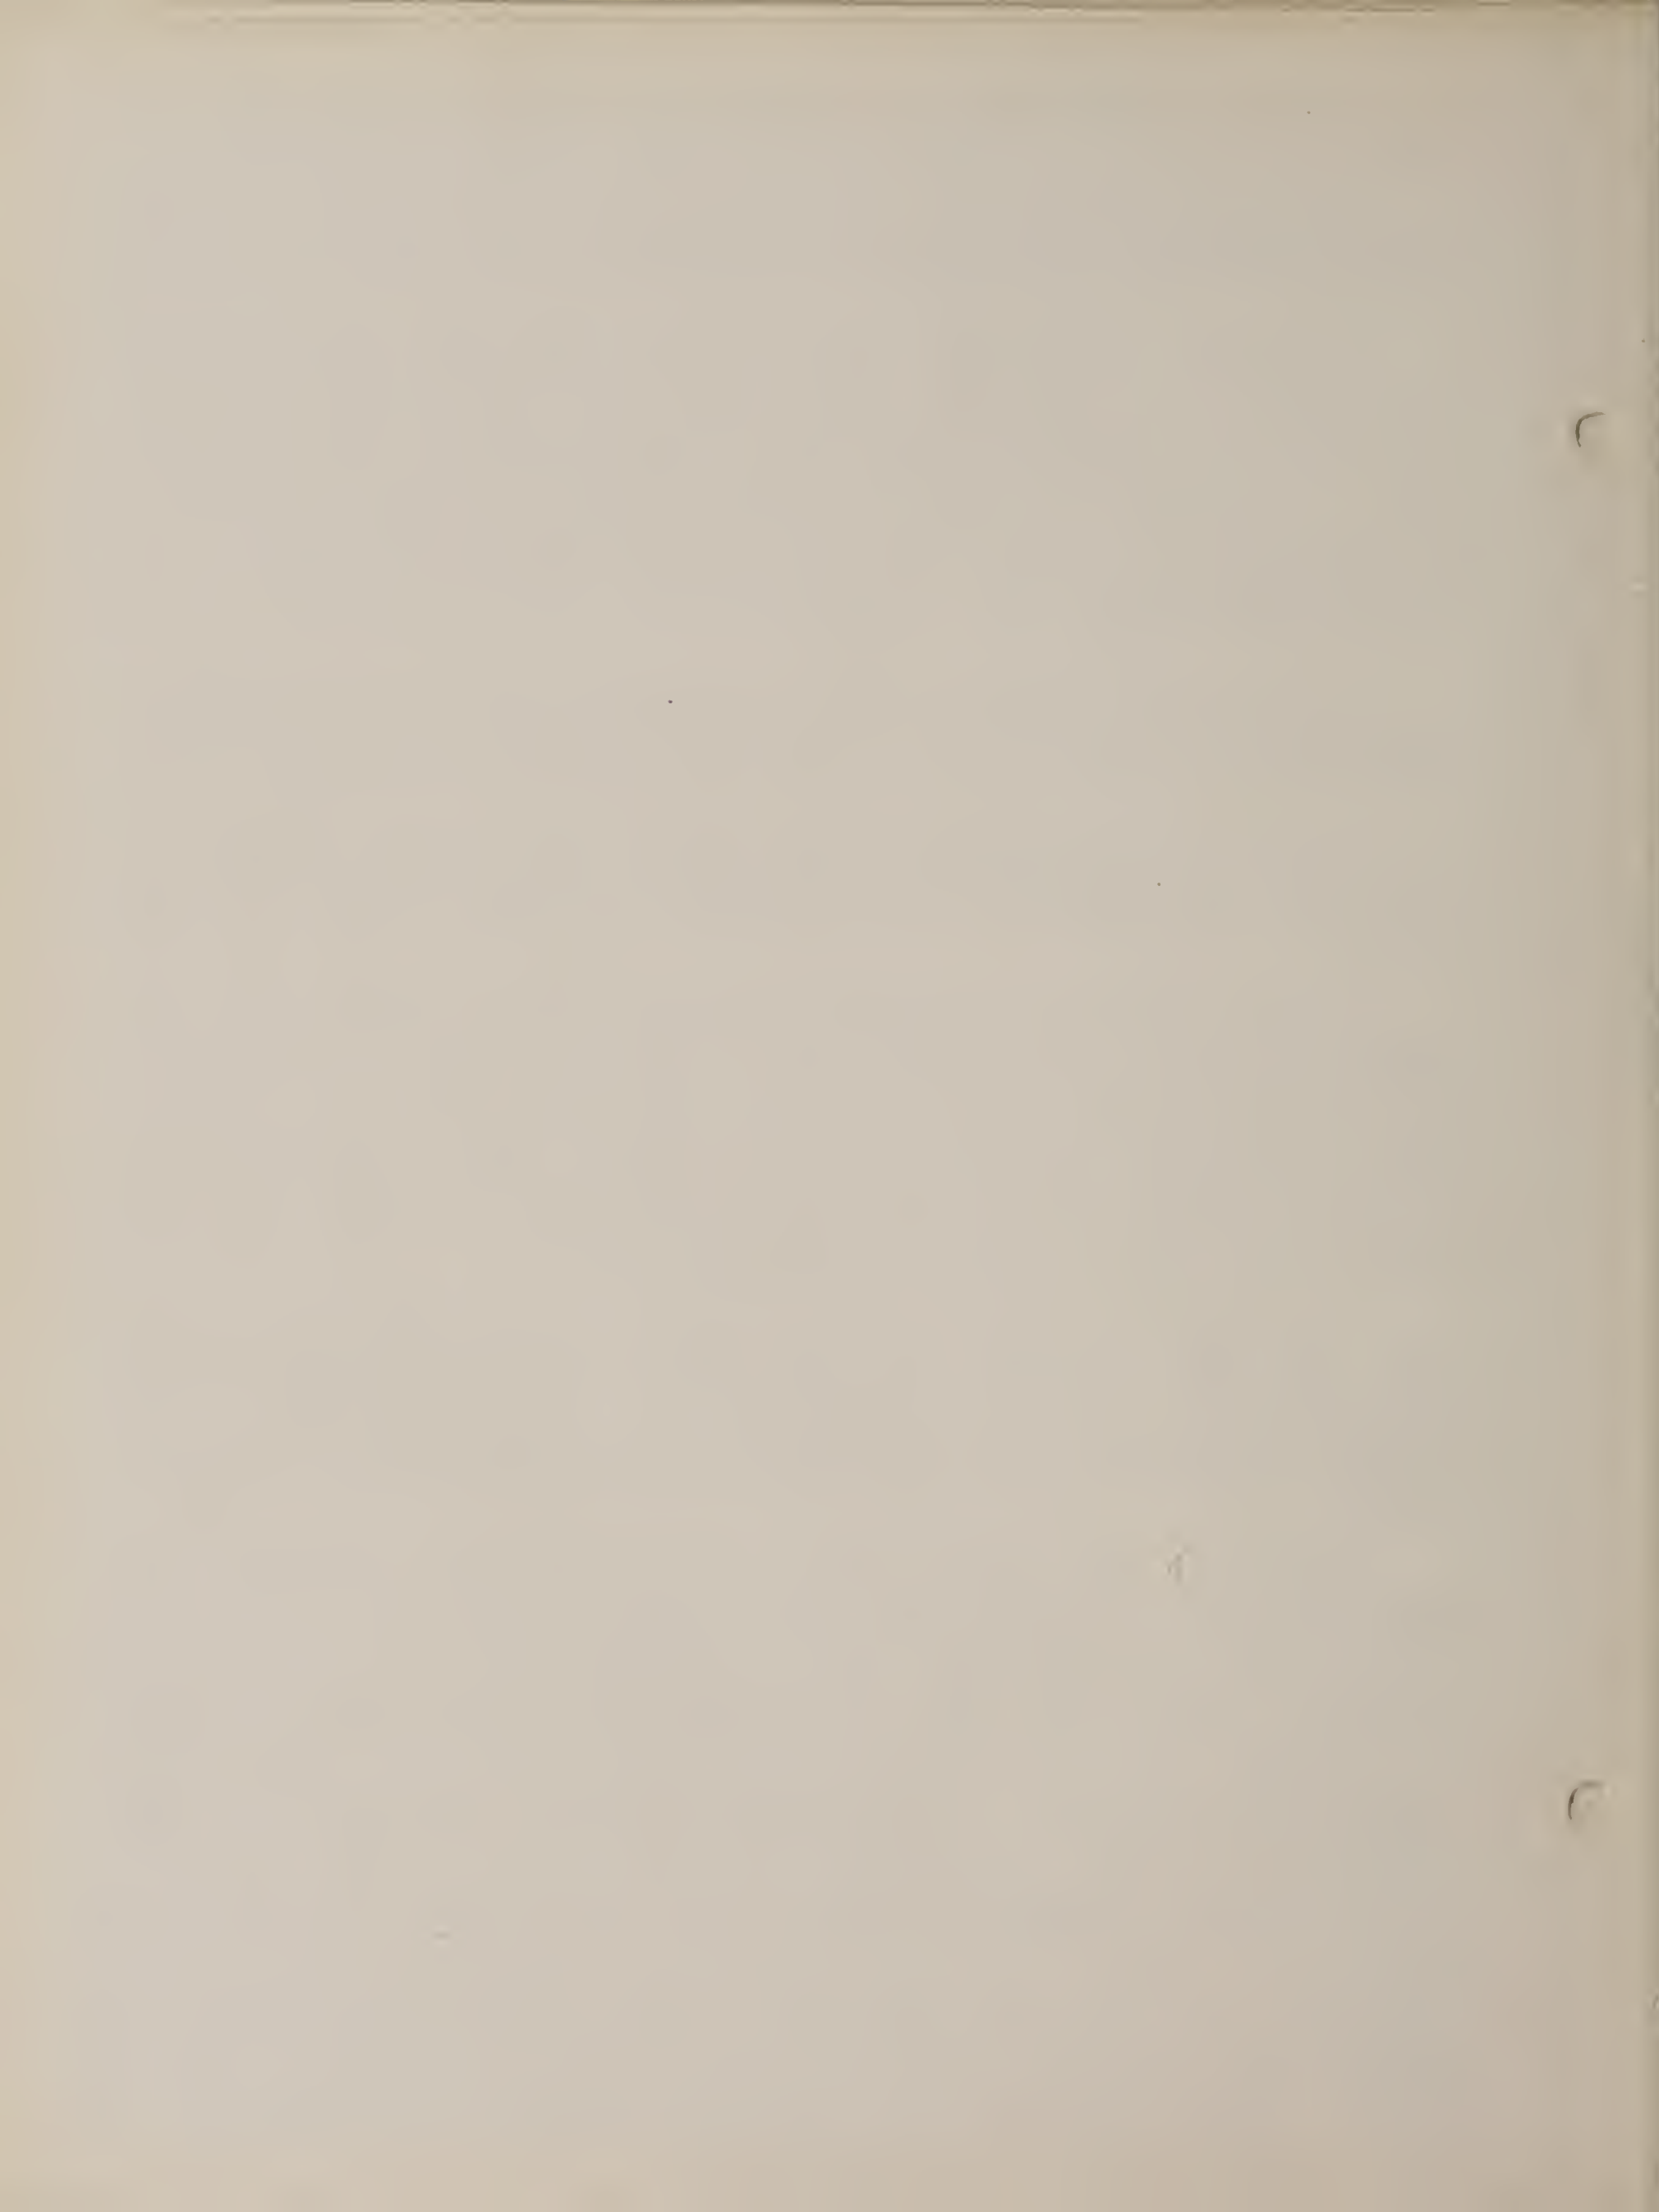

We soon saw a bright glow and knew we were approaching Mars and would soon penetrate the atmosphere. We followed Pauline's directions and received only a slight jolt when we did break through.

Before we left the rocket we were given a special pair of walking shoes. These shoes were to keep us from traveling a distance of approximately 20 feet with each step. I couldn't help thinking that Charlie Pantano would have enjoyed traversing that distance in only one stride the first year he ran in the Marathon. Charlie had successfully competed in the Marathon and was now training prospective champion runners when he was not busy at his job as head of a painting firm.

I alighted from the rocket and was seeking someone who could tell me how to reach my hotel when I spied a handsome space patrolman who resembled Leo Lataille. I never dreamed it was actually Leo. He had requested duty on Mars because he was seeking excitement and here he was giving directions to lost people.

There was one thing that I was especially interested in learning about and that was the trend in style in clothes on this planet so I stepped into a fashion salon. I asked to speak to the manager and found that she was our own Jackie Trudeau. Jackie had done a wonderful job as Business Manager of our Year book. She told me Pat Powers had joined their staff as a fashion stylist and was doing remarkably well designing clothes appropriate to the Martian climate. Another bit of information Jackie volunteered was that Pauline Young was the leading fashion model on Mars.

Of all my classmates Albert was the only one who wasn't satisfied with the world as it now was. He was going to give Barbara Chliszczyk a piece of his mind when he saw her for she was to blame for the lag in his business. Albert was an undertaker and people were taking too long to die in this day and age. I listened to him drone on about his financial distress all the way back to Earth. He was one person who certainly deserved his title as the most talkative-boy in the Senior Class.

That night as I was once again settled in my home my thoughts were of all these wonderful people with whom I had spent so many happy ears. And then it happened. The old familiar voice of Barbara Godin, now an elementary school teacher, saying, "It's time to get up." Oh well, I suppose all dreams have to end sometime.

Anita Petrosky

Class History

As I stand here with my classmates about me, I am a bit bewildered. I find it hard to believe that we are gathered together for the last time before bringing to a close tomorrow those four glorious years at Bellingham High School. As I look into my classmates faces, each with its own expressions, yet each alike in its own sad way, I wonder what mysterious thoughts can be hidden behind them. What can they be thinking of? Can their thoughts be traveling, as mine are, to that day when we first entered this school and to all the wonderful things that happened during our years together? Are their hearts choked, as mine is, at the joy of recalling those unforgettable memories which all began with that bright and happy September morning in 1948 when we entered this school as Freshmen?

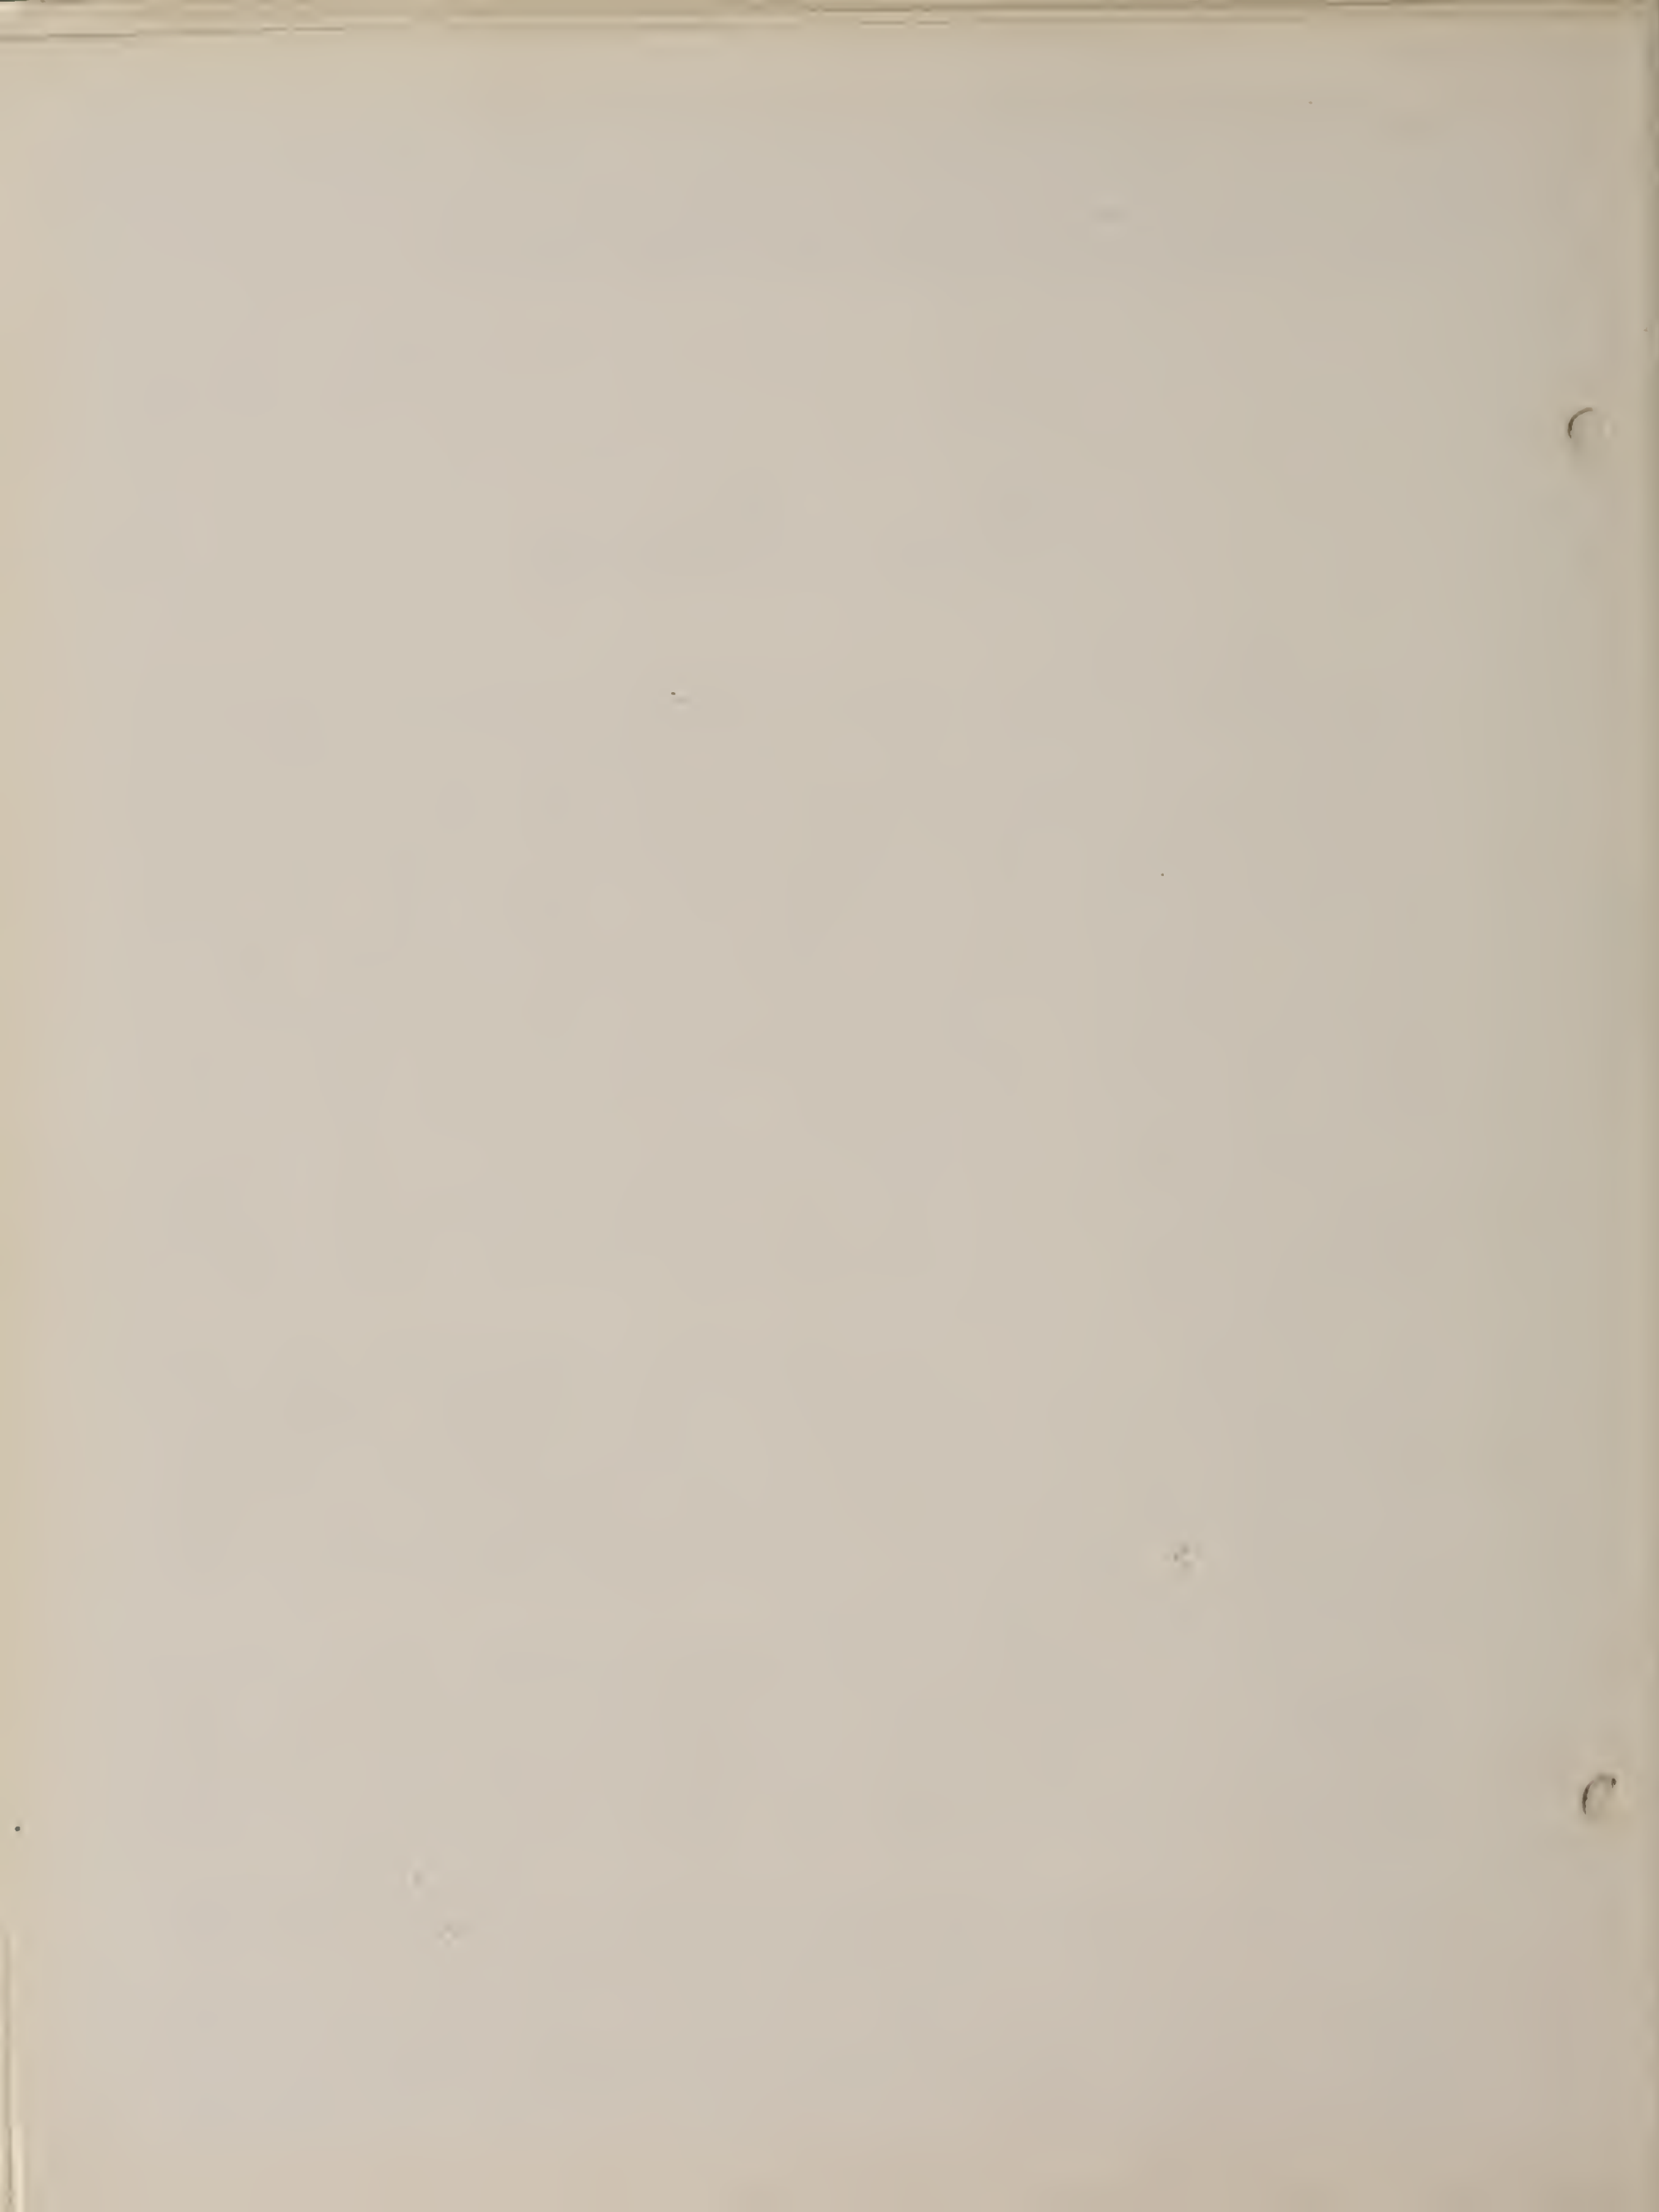

Although we had been in the High School as seventh and eighth grade members, still it seemed strange to be High School Freshmen. But soon the friendliness of the upper-classmen made us feel welcome and proud to be members of Bellingham High School.

Our first year was really a hectic one and with Mr. Flynn as our Class Advisor, our first class meeting was held to elect the following officers: Patricia Powers, president; Margaret Shelton, vice-president; Walter Pichie, secretary; and Anita Petrosky, treasurer. Looking pretty foolish dressed in strange costumes and acting as slaves to our superior Seniors on Initiation Day. We were amply rewarded that evening with an Acquaintance Dance. They certainly did their utmost to make us feel at home.

As the year went on, basketball brought Andy Gregoire on the team and Pauline Allain and Anita Petrosky as Cheerleaders. In February came our first social event, the Valentine Dance. With the hall all decorated with red and white hearts and streamers, there was loads of fun for everyone but more than that it meant our first taste of social success.

Final Exams and the class outing to Nantasket brought us to the end of our first year together at B. H. S., and soon we found ourselves being greeted as Sophomores.

Although this year was not an easy one, as for studies, we still managed to find time for fun and activities. Our class officers were: Margaret Shelton, president; Henry Patrick, vice-president; Barbara Chlischczyk, secretary; and Jacqueline Trudeau, treasurer.

Our first social event of the year was the Thanksgiving Dance and Turkey Raffle. It was not only successful as a social affair, as we danced to the music of Tiger Brown's Orchestra, but it was also a great financial success, for we had found that we had to work pretty hard if we ever wanted to go to Washington.

In March we held our class banquet which certainly was an event to remember (even if it was pretty hard to eat our own cooking). Our class trip came again too quickly, but not before we had ordered our class rings. And so our unforgettable Sophomore year passed with Mr. Time and before we knew it we were Juniors.

This was a big year for us, for we were now upperclassmen, something we had been looking forward to for a long time. We elected as our class officers Charles Pantano, president; Albert Forte, vice-president; Barbara Chliszczyk secretary; and Anita Petrosky, treasurer. When our class rings came we could not seem to get them on our fingers fast enough so we could show them to the other classes.

That year our social activities commenced in October with the Halloween Dance. Although it was a gay and festive affair with corn stalks and pumpkins, bright-colored shirts, and old-fashioned square dancing to the music of Jimmy Savoni's Orchestra, there was sadness in the hearts of all the Juniors for it was farewell dance to one of our fellow classmates, Margaret Shelton.

Again came basketball. This time we had an addition to make. Two new cheerleaders from our class, Christine Glowka and Barbara Chliszczyk, would help to cheer our team to victory. After basketball was over we were kept busy planning our Junior Prom. Soon April 6 rolled around. With "Stardust" as our theme, our dreams seemed to be fulfilled as we danced to the dreamy music of Gene King's Orchestra in a garden of roses and stars. Katherine Betsch and Albert Forte reigned as King and Queen as one of our most treasured evenings came to an end and is now but a memory.

Our Junior year went along pretty smoothly except for the class squables for which we were famous. Again came exams and our trip to Nantasket climaxed our third step on the ladder to success. We could hardly wait to become Seniors.

At last the long-awaited day arrived. Yes, we were now Seniors and we were glad to hear that Miss Bailey would be our new Class Advisor. Not losing sight of studies, we were well aware that this would be a busy year. Our main objective - Washington. As we settled down to business, our first class meeting was held to elect the officers that would guide us through our final year. The results showed that capable Charles Pantano would be our president; with William Cowen as vice-president; Barbara Chliszczyk, secretary and Katherine Betsch, treasurer. Patricia Powers and Albert Forte were elected chairmen of activities.

To start the year off with a bang we held a Freshman Acquaintance Dance and in November, a Harvest Bazaar and supper. Then came our Christmas Ball, "White Christmas". As we danced in a hall of green and white, we were very proud of our Queen, Constance Casavant.

In February, much to our dismay, Charles Pantano resigned as president of our class. I guess it was too much for him. Henry Patrick was elected to take his place and he certainly did a wonderful job. During Lent we sponsored a series of whist parties and a musical entitled "Showboat" and for the first time came the realization that our treasury would just about make it. But Miss Bailey spurred us on and soon our finances were complete. Yes- we were ready to leave for New York and Washington!

On the morning of April 12 we boarded the bus for Providence, and then the train to New York. Oh, what a glorious feeling it was when we arrived there! All those buildings and people! Some difference from Bellingham! There was so much to do. In New York we visited Radio City Music Hall, took a yacht trip around Manhattan Island, toured the R C A Building, saw the Empire State Building, and even were a part of the Easter Parade. Then we left for Washington. There were so many government buildings and historical monuments to see that it is hard to remember them all. Will we ever forget how beautiful the cherry blossoms looked in full bloom? As we turned homeward, after visiting Annapolis, we realized that now our one great dream had been realized and that four years of hard work and planning was behind us and but a memory.

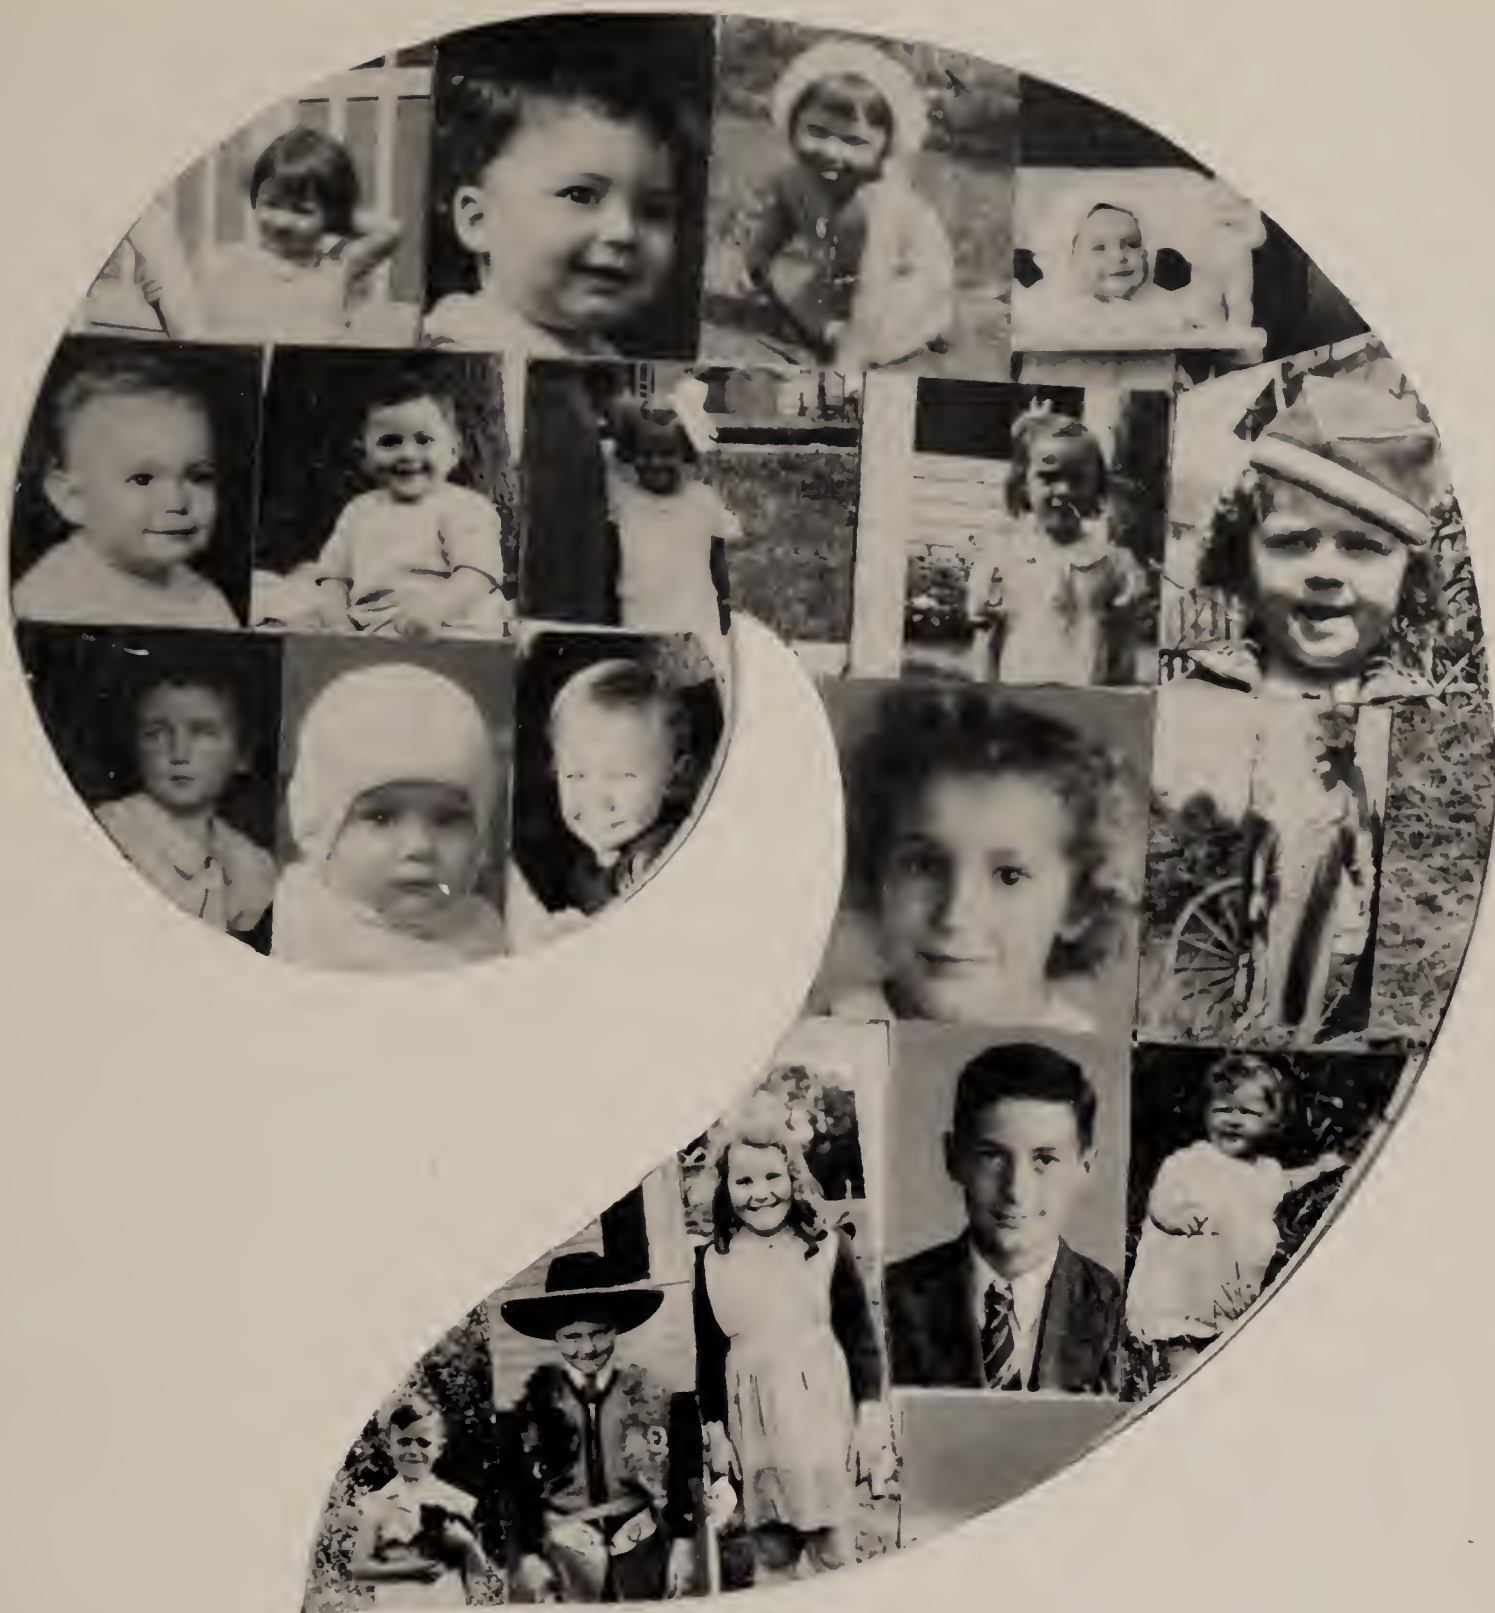

The following week we finished our yearbook under the capable direction of Pauline Alland and the rest of her staff, and it was finally sent to the publisher.

Now, with about only two more months to spend together, we sponsored a play entitled "Tons of Fun" which was directed by Mr. Collins. As baseball season rolled around for the last time, Andre Gregoire and Albert Forte were again on the team showing just what members of our Senior Class could do.

Now with our High School career but a memory and our last exams at B. H. S. over, Commencement week has crept upon us, with its outings, our Class Banquet, tonight-our Class Night, tomorrow-Commencement, and finally our Commencement Ball.

We are about to bid farewell to our classmates, our friends, our teachers, and most of all to our school which to us has been our home for so long. We can not help but feel this sadness in our hearts along with the feeling of victory and joy as we receive our diplomas and walk out into the world, each in our own way, not knowing what is to face us or our classmates.

Class Will

We, the Class of 1952 of Bellingham High School, in the county of Norfolk, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts do declare this to be our last will and testament. To our very understanding faculty, we leave our sincerest thanks for the fond memories and the great aids they were in helping us solve our many problems. In addition, we make the following individual bequests, hoping they will be accepted by all with a good-natured grin:

To Mr. Rowe, we leave our old text books, "When will we have that bon fire?"

To Mr. Collins, we leave dictionaries for his psychology class, so he won't have to go into details explaining those LONG words.

To Miss Bailey, we leave our QUIET 5th period and our ORDERLY class meetings.

To Mr. Keeugh, we leave a supply of magnifying glasses for those students who can't see those pieces of paper on the floor.

We'd like to leave Miss Mulgrew a chemistry class that won't try to blow up the school or fumigate the building.

To Mrs. Arpin, we leave a pencil sharpener and a supply of pencils for her stenography students.

To Mr. Flynn, we take the best players of the basketball team from him, but we leave a few for next year's team. We hope you can get along without us.

To Miss Goguen, we leave a French class that may know how to speak a little French at the end of the year. Even though we didn't.

To Mr. Conlan, we leave a new set of history book 'cause we know how much you love to teach history.

To Mrs. Kelly, we leave that long desired wish for a first period English Class.

Carl Adams leaves his good manners and disposition to and underclassman who might have need of them.

That girl who always said, "I'll never get married." Pauline Allain leaves free instructions on becoming an old maid. (Of course, she isn't following these instructions.)

Anita Petresky and Katy Betsch leave their straight jackets to anyone who cannot control their ever abundance of pep when necessary.

Normand Blain leaves his stylish hair-cut to anyone who wishes to be the Sampson of '52.

Bruce Carroll leaves his job in the Home Economics room to any Junior boy who can open coke bottles.

Connie Casavant leaves all those guys to the Junior girls, better take your pick now while the picking's good.

Barbara Chliszczyk leaves high marks, books and learning to anyone who may need them.

William Cowen leaves his bashful ? ways to the next very quiet boy.

Claire Fleurette leaves her speed in typing and shorthand to any commercial students who wishes to be ahead of the rest of the class.

Albert Forte leaves that handsome smile and persuasive ways to the next guy who wants to talk his way in or out of something.

Christine Glowka leaves those flashing eyes and flattering smile to any girl who wants to keep them crawling. The men I mean.

Barbara Godin leaves her seat in Psychology to someone who doesn't want to be recognized during class.

Andy Gregoire leaves his basketball technique to anyone wishing to make those spectacular long shots that just happen when he least expects them.

Pauline Landry leaves the key to happiness to anyone who wishes to be in her shoes. Poor Pauline, she's going to walk that church aisle in a few weeks.

Those corny jokes and remarks that Leo Lataille always seems to pick out of thin air, he leaves in his book "My OWN JOKES(?)".

Maurice Ledoux leaves his quiet and friendly disposition to anyone who will make good use of it.

Theresa Majeau leaves her very quiet and petite ways to the one to take her place. Better keep that record up.

Charlie Panatao leaves that cute water pistol to those boys who have trouble over who'll get that girl. Don't get too wet boys.

We know that you would all like to have the dancing ability of Henry Patrick, so he leaves it to the one who will make the most of it.

Patricia Powers leaves her quiet and unassuming manner to all those noisy underclassmen of B. H. S.

Jackie Trudeau leaves her everlasting personality and her nerve of asking the fellows to dance to the Junior girls.

That red headed Pauline Young leaves a box of Tintair to any girl who wishes to be that same fiery red that she naturally is.

In testimony we herunto set our hands and in the presence twelfth day of June in the year of our Lord, One Thoudand nine hundred and fifty two.

Connie to Pauline: "He likes my company and I simply love his. I think it's call Fidelity Trust.

Mr. Keough- Stop acting like a fool!

Leo- I'm not acting

Miss Mulgrew to Miss Bailey after parking the car: "That's close enough. . . .we can walk to the curb."

Henry- I had an awful headache last night

Charles-Yes, I saw you with her.

Albert- I was injured on the basketball team.

William-How?

Albert- I fell off the bench.

Mr. Collins- What part of the car causes the most accidents?

Carl- The nut that holds the wheel.

Jackie: What do you call frozen water?

Norm: Iced water!

Jackie: What do you call frozen ink?

Norm: Iced ink!

Jackie: You're telling me.

I've got a cedar chest.

Wonderful! I've got a wooden leg.

Basketball

For the first time in the history of the Bellingham Blackhawks, the Hawks completed one of its most successful basketball seasons with a record of 17 wins and only 4 losses, shattering Jim Keough's old record of 15-6.

The first game of the season found Coach Frank Flynn selecting a starting five composed of Bob Nutting and Al Marcet, at forwards, Paul Petrosky at center, "Capt." Andy Gregoire and Charles Pantano at guards, with Palmer, Meotti, Forte, Hachey, Rowe, Young, Schwenker, and Canestrari in reserve. This team, composed mostly of Juniors, swept its way past the first 13 opponents before running into a strong Northbridge H.S. quintet which handed the Hawks its only defeat of the regular seasons play.

For the second consecutive year the Hawks defeated their Arch-rival, Blackstone H.S., and regained the Woonsocket Retail Trade Board Trophy, and downing an aggressive Franklin quintet for the Franklin Rotary Club Trophy.
